For its annual standardized testing, Summit Christian School administers the nationally recognized Terra Nova Test (3rd Edition) from the textbook publisher McGraw-Hill/CTB. The Terra Nova test was adopted in 2010 by the Association of Christian Schools, International (ACSI) as one of the best available standardized tests, and as a member of ACSI, Summit uses this test.

Standardized tests are “normed” nationally, which means 50% of the students who take the test score above the 50th percentile, while 50% score below that percentile mark. As a school, Summit scores far above the 50th percentile. However, this is to be expected since Summit is a private school with small class sizes and has involved and supportive parents. That is why we compare ourselves not to the public schools, but to other schools like ours who belong to ACSI, both Nationally and across the state of California.
